Preface.

To make a representative record of the various activities of Bethel College has been the aim of this work. It is the result of the united labors of the class of '08.

Hampered, as we were, by limited funds and shortness of time occasioned by the demands of our class work, we have striven to make this booklet a pleasing monuments of the scholastic year, 1907-08.

If any are put through the mill and have their failings exposed, let each one submit cheerfully and remember that no malice is entertained and no offence is intended. Those mentioned are probably better off than those not noticed at all.

We also wish to extend our thanks to all who have assisted us in getting out this booklet. Here we wish to mention especially the instructors in music, fine arts, and mathematics.

And so, this being the maiden effort of the students of Bethel College in publishing an annual we, with bated breath, desire to beg your kind indulgence and await your verdict.

The Editors.

To
REV. C. H. Wedel, A. M.
This book is respectfully dedicated.

History of Bethel College.

It was September 20, 1893, when after many delays and difficulties, Bethel College first opened its doors to those who might enroll. Ever since, its career has been one of steady growth, extending its departments and adding new ones to those already established.

As the first Mennonite College in America, it was founded and is supported by the Bethel College Corporation of the Mennonites of North Ameriea, and is governed by the same through a board of directors, whose members, according to the statutes of the corporation, are elected at the annual meeting.

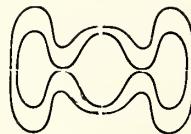

Prior to Bethel College, in 1882, a Mennonite Seminary had already been established at Halstead, Kansas, by the Kansas Conference of Mennonites. This school was built to answer the demands of the large number of Mennonites who came to Kansas in the 70's from Europe, and other states in the Union. They required a school in which both German and English were taught and in which instruction in the truths of the Holy Scriptures was given. The school should be a means for preparing teachers for district schools, for parochial schools, and for Sunday Schools, to prepare laborers for the mission field, whether at home or abroad, and it should offer special advantages to those who wish to fit themselves for the duties of life generally.

In course of time, however, it was found desirable to raise an endowment fund, to increase the facilities of the school and to locate the same permanently. Therefore, in 1887, the Kansas Conference met in special session to consider an offer made by the City of Newton, on condition that the school be built there. The conference did not accept the offer, but favored the organization of an association having for its aim the establishment and maintenance of a Mennno-nite School at Newton, Kansas. An association was formed and incorporated with the object of raising an endowment fund, of erecting the necessary buildings, and of providing for the requirements of the school. The result of their labors is our present Alma Mater, Bethel College.

During the fifteen years of its activity over 1000 registered students have found instruction in its halls; 5 of these are working in the mission field of India, while 10 more are active among our American Indians. About 37 have entered the ministry, while over 180 are in the teaching profession. The rest are scattered over the whole globe in the various walks of life.

The past year marks the highest enrollment, which Bethel College has had in its history, the total number of students being one hundred and fifty-four. 1907-08 was one of its most successful years, and with brightest prospects for more growth and extension in the near future, we close this history.

Class Will.

When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for one class to dissolve the bonds which have connected them with their school and their fellow-students and to assume among the people of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the law of nature entitles them, a decent respect to the opinions of all mankind requires that they should declare their last will and testament.

We, the graduates of Bethel College of Newton, Harvey county, State of Kansas, being in full possession of a sound mind and memory, do hereby make, publish, and declare this to be our last will and testament, hereby revoking and making void all former wills by us at any time heretofore made.

1st. We do direct that our commencement exercises be conducted by our friends and well-wishers, the Faculty, who as often have conducted our affairs to mutual satisfaction and benefit, only asking that we be decked by a single carnation and a few bands of red and black.

2nd. We order and direct our executor as soon as possible after the close of school to discharge and pay off all debts and liabilities that may exist against us at the time of our dismissal.

3rd. We give and bequeath unto the Faculty, especially the "Ordinarius," peaceful dreams and nights of solid rest, no further annoyance, either three chicken-fries or parties. We grant them a rest from "o8" petitions. We relieve them of all responsibility connected with the publishing and distributing of the annual, published by us. Futhermore, they may use the knowledge and startling information, given them at whatsoever times we may have had written quizzes and exams.

4th. To the Freshman we grant an unlimited extension of their lease to the west hall with all its dips, spurs, and angles therein contained, including the chimney and seat with all walls surrounding it, to leave their marks, as they have done herefore.

5th. To the industrious class of '09 we will bequeath (a) the last two rows of Chapel seats, where they may do their studying during devotional hours ad libitum, provided nobody objects.

(b) Messrs Henry Schenkofsky and H. P. Wiebe.

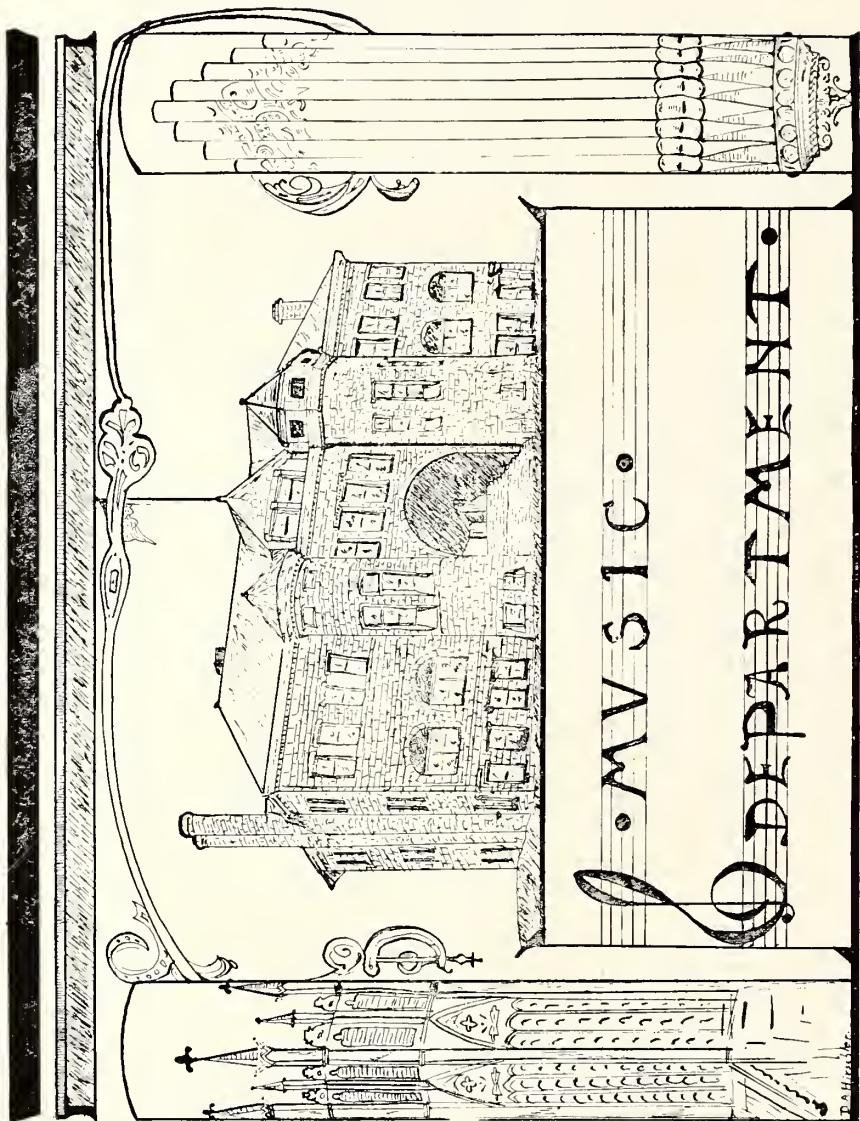

(c) Our senior dignity and honor.

(d) All our keys, answer books, and ponies for Latin and Greek.

6th. All the rest and residue of our property, whatsoever or wheresoever, of what nature, kind, or quality it may be and not herein before disposed of, we give and bequeath to our former beloved Janitor, Mr. John Becker. We hereby nominate and appoint Mr. Chr. Schmutz as the executor of this our last will and testament.

In witness whereof we have hereunto subscribed our name this 29th day of February, 1908, A.D.

PROF. D. A. HIRSCHLER

Vocal Music.

Mr. Bixel studied with some of the best masters in Europe (where he studied for $2\frac{1}{2}$ years) and in America. He has had more than 7 years of preparation for his chosen art of teaching and directing. Since 1902 he had charge of the vocal department of the college where, in conjunction with the city chorus, more than a dozen performances of the Master Oratorios were given, reaching a high plane of perfection. Several Oratorios were given by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. The past year the "Messiah" and "St. Paul" were given by large choruses

Instrumental Music.

This department has had a very prosperous year, encouraging to both teacher and students. As regards to the enrollment in the entire Department of Music, the number was greater than ever before, approximately 80 students taking work either in piano, organ, singing, or theory. This amounts to over 50 per cent. of the total enrollment.

During the year the Department has purchased a new Chickering piano, thus adding another beautiful as well as serviceable instrument to the collection.

When Prof. Bixel Leads the Singin'.

Standin' there so tall and gaunt,
Head agoin', arms aflingin'.
Tell you its a funny sight
When Prof. Bixel leads the singin'.

Talk about your acrobat
Or your pugilistic swingin';
'Tain't one-half the sight you see
When Prof. Bixel leads the singin'.

Every muscle just in tune,
Ev'ry action notes abringin—'
'Tain't no wonder music comes
When Prof. Bixel leads the singin'.

Evening on The Campus.

When on the college campus
Comes evening's tender pall,
The moonlight comes to linger
On chapel and hall.
When daylight dies our voices rise,
While stars look down from silent skies;
We sing our college praises
And watch the shadows fall.

The new moon dips her crescent
Toward Venus glowing near;
All nature lies quiescent—
Yet sweetly on the ear
There falls a low melodious strain
That swells and dies and swells again—
A chant of college praises
Our list'ning hearts of cheer!

The deep'ning gloom marks midnight,
Yet still we sit and sing,
While to the night airs gently
The branches sway and swing;
All free from strife, with gladness rife,
We bless our careless student life,
And to our college praises,
We make the echoes ring.

From "Songs of all Colleges."

A Bethel Song.

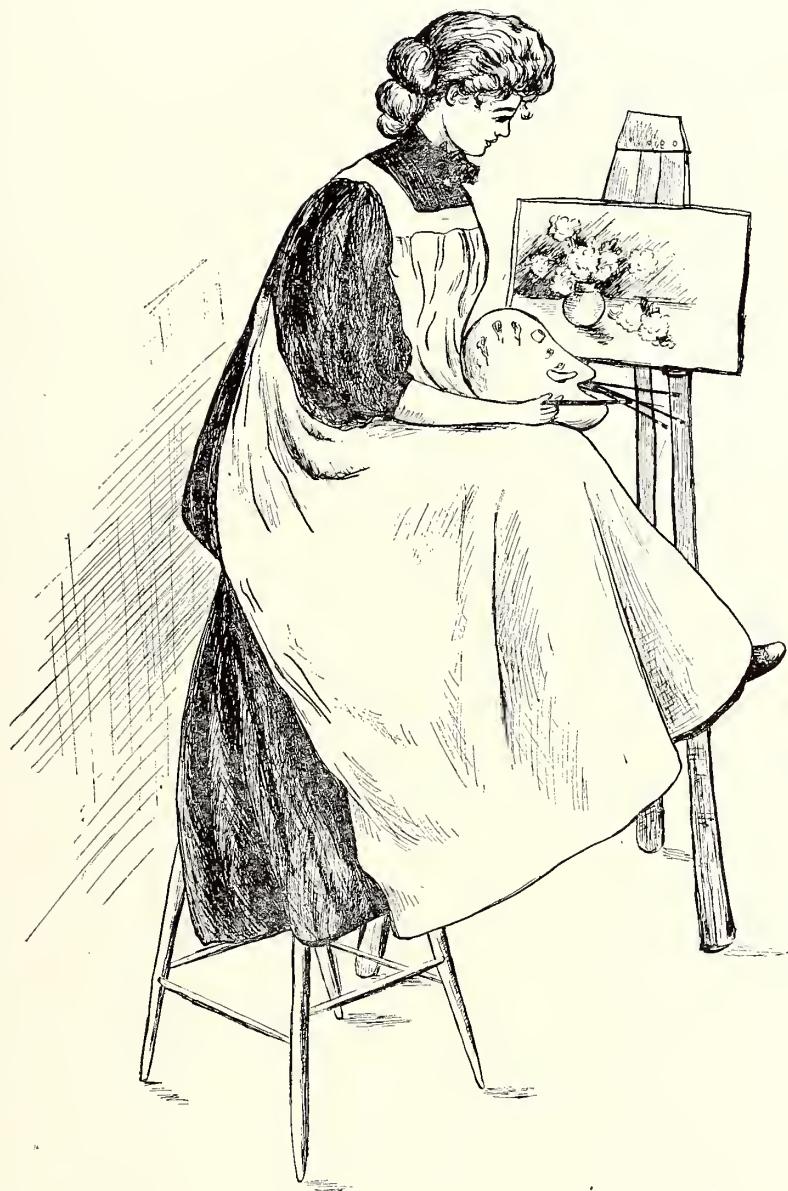

Sing we a Bethel song;
Let it rise full and strong
From loyal hearts!
We sing of books and friends,
Of true intelligence,
Of Science, common sense,
And all the Arts.

Three cheers with voice and hands
For all that Bethel stands
In work or play!
Three cheers for Hebron's hights,
Its games and birth-day sights,
And for all Bethelites—
Three cheers we say!

When Bethel's song we sing,
Be it with double string
Of heart and voice!
We sing a noble name
With an historic fame;
Remember whence it came
And so rejoice!

Bethel means "House of God";
Spread this good name abroad,
And make it true!
Stand up for truth and right,
For wisdom's holy light,
For all that's pure and bright
And lovely, too!

MISS LIZZIE WIRKLER

The Bethel College Art Department under the direction of Miss Lizzie Wirkler, during the past four years has made great progress. Free-hand Drawing, Painting and Pyrography are taught. Art is studied in order to broaden and develop the individual life, and as good drawing is at the basis of all art work, much attention is given to that branch.

Lovingly copying Nature's face,
Seeking to portray her heart,
Earnestly striving to show her grace—
This is the meaning of art.

MISS ALICE MARTIN

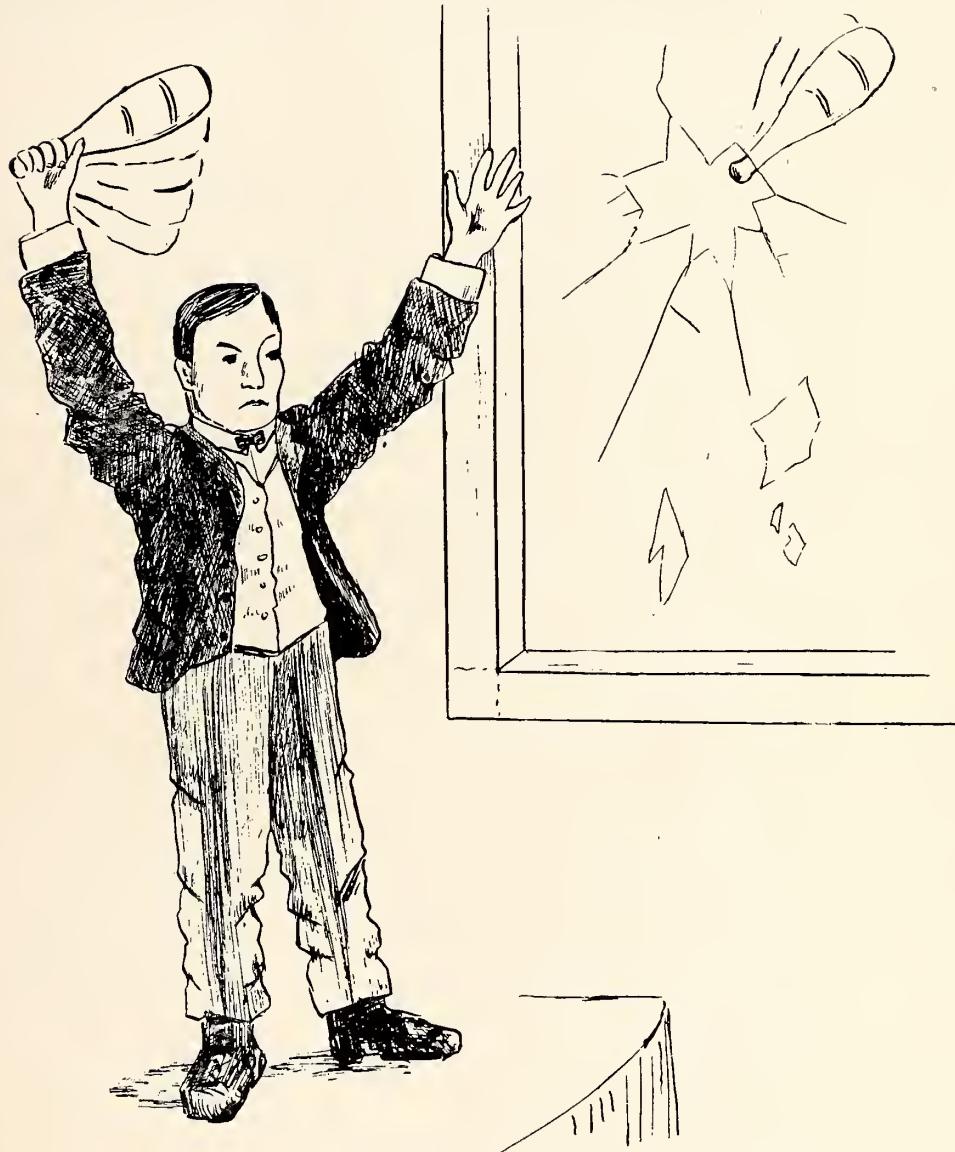

Department of Elocution.

The purpose of a course in elocution is to develop the powers of expression in individuals. It is true that the ability to conceive ideas is of great importance, but next to them is the ability to express them. Whatever we know and cannot express is useless to the outside world. Men are measured by what they can express. This ability is also one attribute, which raises man above the animal world. As expression employs the entire man, the course provides for the education of both mind and body. It includes physical culture, bodily expression, voice culture, interpretation, personation. In physical culture, the Emerson system is used. Drills in Indian clubs and dumb bells are given as desired.

PROF. F. M. UNRUH

The Commercial Department of Bethel College was established in the fall of 1898 and has made a steady growth ever since. Very insignificant was the beginning when Prof. C. N. Parsons took charge of the principalship. Our present fine library, then two ill-equipped rooms were its quarters. In course of time as the department grew under his wise direction, more and better equipped apartments were demanded. So it was taken to the basement. Here we have plenty of room with modern office furniture, a separate room for typewriters, special arrangements for banking, and everything necessary for first class work. With these improvements made and considerably more planned for the coming year, this department offers as good a course as can be had in the state.

Two courses, the Business Course and Shorthand Course are offered. The course in Book-keeping has, so far, been taken from the Williams and Rogers Series. The work is nearly all individual. Each student is allowed to work as fast as he can, provided he does his work well. In the Shorthand Course the Eclectic system is taught. Remington typewriters are used.

Prof. F. M. Unruh has been at the head of this department ever since the resignation of Prof. Parsons. The enrollment during the past year amounted to 15 per cent. of the total number of students.

Athletics.

This term has of late been definitely applied to recognized contests of physical skill and endurance, for pastime, and for the developement of bodily strength. On account of its advantages to a school, its value is reeognized at present almost universally, yet there are a few who still claim that athletics interferes with the welfare of the school.

Various are the reasons for their opposition. Fractured bones, dislocated joints; and the hindrances to school work on account of them, are some of the causes for the objections. Exercise of this kind is too violent, students neglect their work in order to be good in athletics, and similar reasons are brought forth. Whatever weight these arguments have, they are, however, far overbalanced by its merits.

The fact is that athletes can do quicker work in preparing their lessons and are brighter in their classes, than those that put more time in their studies and do not develop their physical power. How much a person learns, does not necessarily depend upon the amount of time spent over his books. It may be the reverse. The way in which a person attacks his work and his ability to carry it on determine entirely the amount and quality of work done. The athlete has learned to do quicker and better work, because quick and right judgment is exercised and developed in all games. Probably one of the most important benefits of athletics, but often underestimated, is that it is a means of gaining and retaining health and strength, mentally as well as physically. The injuries received from overtaxing the mind and losses of health on account of insufficient exercise, which are hereby prevented, alone outweigh its evils. Furthermore, its effects on the morals of the student are very marked. First of all, the student has something to fill out the time in which he should rest his mental powers and, therefore it prevents him from wasting any time. Students that spend their leisure time, either on the base-ball diamond, basket-ball floor, or tennis court, as a rule, are not found to indulge in any mischief, because they have a better way of exercising their physical powers and wit. Finally the inter-collegiate contests should not be overlooked in this discussion. In these the players of the different schools learn to know and regard each other and to respect the schools which they represent. This brings them in touch with other people and thus they are led to understand them and themselves and ultimately whole mankind.

Chronicles of the Seniors.

Peace and quiet had reigned on Hebron's heights for lo these many years since Bethel was founded upon the dreams of the noblest of that land. And that same peace and quiet, which had been for so long enjoyed by the still of that land, was only to be broken when in the fall of 1906 there appeared throngs of hosts from the four ends of the earth. And they came from the sunny climes of the south; from the land of the setting sun, where the orange blossoms and the Pacific purs at the foot of the Cascades; from the north, as stalworth as the pine of that cime, and from the morning, even sons of the old Hoosier state filling the halls of Bethel and all bearing the insignia of '08.

It so happened that the tribe, called Seniors in the land, were few in number and small of stature. Their chief priest, the last member of a long royal lineage, who from his earliest years was rather given to quiet musing and the playing of his lyre, would only now and then lead forth his flock and then leave them to themselves again, when some of their members would be wrapt in figures or devoted to alchemy and chirurgery or some other favorite art or science. But there was a virgin priestess of that tribe, fair and flushing as the daughters of Egypt, who would feign have set at naught the plans of Juniors, heretofore unknown in the kingdom who were now fast gaining a foothold in the land and playing havoc with the Seniors. Also the elders feared greatly that their sojourn in the land might indicate a change in the customs and precepts which one, Menno, their chief prophet, who had lived many years ago, had laid down for them; and in their fear already saw the time when here also the hook and eye would be replaced by the decadent button. And verily, the Juniors did not walk in all the paths of the forefathers and sometimes even forgot the watchword "Tradition," which was the keynote to every undertaking.

There were also feasts and pow-wows held, at which the Seniors were greatly affeared that some of them might be kidnapped and carried off to some foreign strands, nevermore to room on Hebron's heights and in the land of Bethel. But it was only once that, when they would hold a counsil, that the Juniors carried off their chief priest to their caste where he was to play at a feast. But the priest there among the elders of the Junior tribe was left by the muse and his heart waxed sore and yearned for his Seniors, who now went forth in great wrath and smote the doors and windows of the Junior castle and would feign have broken in but a sudden shower cooled the heated tempers and they went forth sorrowing and would not be comforted till the priest of the Juniors arose and came forth and spake unto them saying, "Verily, ye sorrow in vain, for your priest is treated white by us," and great was their rejoicing when he came forth and they found him thus.

Yet once again in the days of Whitsuntide, the Juniors held a council under the memorable oak near Park castle, and their old men arose and spake saying: "Since the erection of the temple and in all the days of Cornelius, the high priest, men have been turning away from the custom of nations and have not raised the flag, arouse ye therefore and let us float our colors." And they all with one accord answered and said: "So shall it be." And their workmen could have been seen at their homes in the fourth watch of the night, perfecting the banner. And on the morning of the 21st of May, as Aurora threw open the pearly gates and parted the clouds of morning, the sun threw his first rays upon the glorious flag, high upon the staff with the '08 emblazoned on it, the first one besides Old Glory ever to ascend the pole. Great was therefore the glory of the Juniors, but weary from such a toil they were detained by the messengers of Morpheus till late in the morn and failed to appear when two little Seniors with trembling hearts mounted the spire and took down the flag.

Yet the end cometh not. The Seniors now emboldened by such an act of valor, in the stillness of the night also made a flag pole, and watched it all day with anxious eye, for that night their chief priest was to win the laurels with his lays before the conference of minstrels. And as the day advanced and the sun sank lower in the west and their flag was still there they commenced to boast and send forth challenges to the Juniors now to attack the flag. For from the lowest realms, where Pluto and Janitor reign, up to the pinnacle of the temple they held every door, locked and guarded.

And there was among the Seniors a mighty poultry man, who would come forth from time to time, mock the Juniors, and speak defiance until with the going down of the sun their vaunted went too high for the Juniors. And before anyone was aware one little Junior was half way up the flag pole and in another moment the proud flag sank with the hearts of the Seniors. But the Juniors gloried greatly in such an act, while the Seniors rent their garments and threw ashes upon their heads and went mourning in sack cloth from the greatest of them even to the least of them.

And a man, mighty in the Faculty, spake unto the assembled multitude, saying, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, this is going too far, and henceforth and ever after the flag pole is declared private property." And there was peace in the land, and the Seniors sojourned for fifteen more days and then came the dispersion.

And the Juniors now in three still months underwent the last stage of the metamorphosis, and on the 3rd of September, 1907, came forth in the imago form, taking possession of all the rights and privileges that the Senior class falls heir to. Unpestered by any Juniors of '08 and walking upright before all men and in the eyes of the Faculty, they now went to work and many were the deeds of glory and honor performed by them.

Now the rest of the acts of the Seniors are they not all written in the book of "records" and proceedings of the Faculty?

The Class of 1908.

When you turn the history's pages and you dwell on great,
 Do not miss, though not recorded, Bethel's Class of 1908;
 For they came, they saw, they conquered, just as Caesar did of old,
 And the banner, being victors, likewise shall o'er them unfold.

Not on bloody fields of honor, not with bayonet or spear,
 Not with raging wrath they conquered, not the cannon's roar was near:
 Truth their cannon, love their spear, labor their consuming fires,
 With the shields of honesty, on they press, not one retires.

Oft the night was dark and dreary, and the talk seemed long and hard;
 Yet they lingered not a moment (heroes always fear discard).
 Yes, they conquered Greek and Latin, part of science, and some of art;
 Even victors (noble heroes) o'er the passions of the heart.

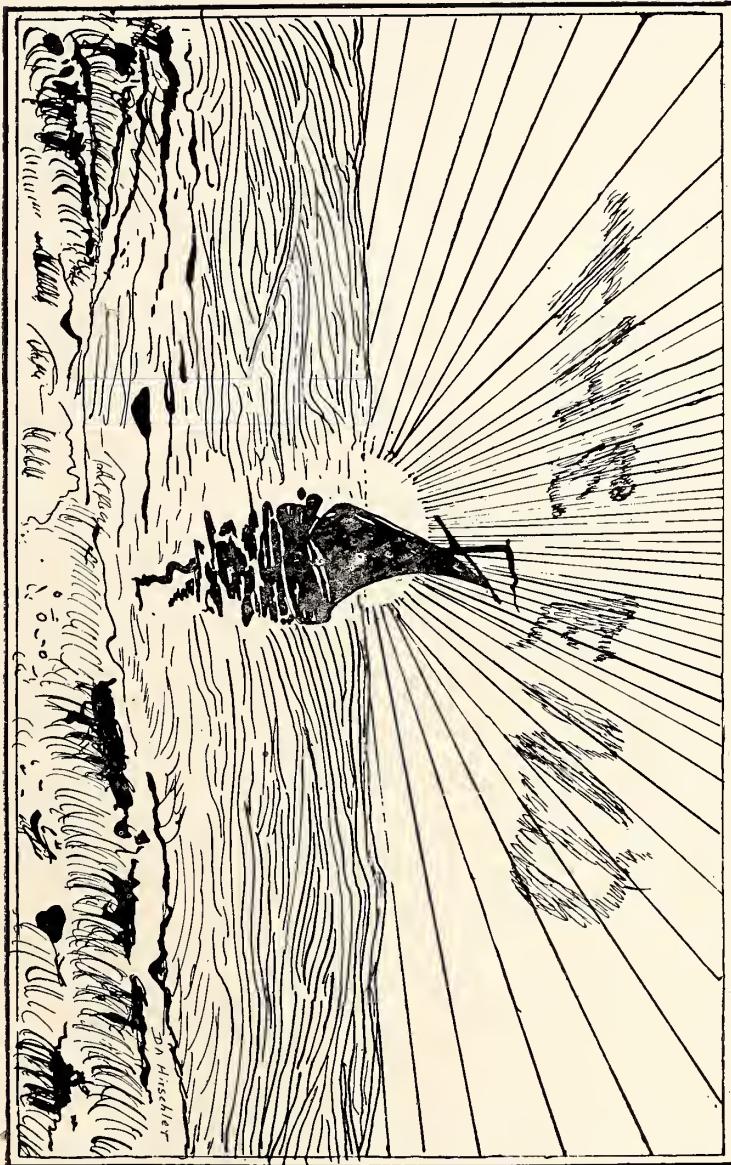

* * * *

To friends and country being true, in fame and duty equal great,
 Cheerful in sorrow, calm in joy; such is the class of 1908.
 O Bethel, firm, stand proud and free; your fame shall spread the wide world o'er.
 And may each man sent out by thee, thy honor be forevermore.

O fellow students, one and all, if e'er you wish in life to pass,
 Love labor, truth, stability; be honest like the Senior class.
 May joys be yours in all the work, the best and highest be your guide.
 Press onward straight through storm and stress let none of you be pushed aside.

O Bethel, dear, thou shalt behold, no more these Seniors and their aims,
 No more their feet will tread thy steps, but in thy memory hold their names;
 And at the setting sun they'll sit and think of thee and memories past;
 The old, familiar, dear old place, it's Bethel, Bethel to the last.

O teachers, you we'll ne'er forget. How much that's ours we owe to you!
 Forgive mistakes, forget our faults; to such we cannot be but true.
 And when in life to duty tied, if rich or poor, if small or great,
 Content and thankful all we'll be, for we're the class of 1908.
